Do it ourselves
A National Co-operative Development Strategy
• Two years of consultation
• 550 co-operatives involved
• International learning
One day most businesses will be run in a participative way, giving a say to those involved.

The best of these will be the foundations for a different kind of economy, one in tune with our values.

These will be co-operatives.

And this is how it starts.
1. Commit to be great at co-operation
2. Be open to new co-operation
3. Join in campaigns for inspiring more co-operation
1. Support freelancers to come together in today’s gig economy
2. Meet needs for co-operative approaches to social care
3. Develop new digital ventures or platform co-ops
• The Co-operative Bank is supporting business support programme, The Hive

• The Co-op College is launching the Future Pioneers Fund

• A new network, CoTech aims to create 100,000 jobs by 2030

• Unicorn Grocery is piloting a new Replication Lab
First people sign up to educate business networks and advisers about the co-op option.

One pound in ten is generated by participative business such as co-ops.
